COMMERCIAL DECLINE

According to some great authority, figures may not govern the world, but they show how the world is governed. This may or may not be true, but we shall endeavour to prove that this country has been retrograding in the last three years with the very same figures that several leading papers have published to prove that the progress and prosperity of the country were never greater than last year and in the first quarter of the present year. In this rather ungrateful analysis we are not influenced by any political bias: on the contrary, we may claim that we have applauded the government "ad nauseam" whenever we thought its acts sound, whilst we have attacked with indulgence every act we considered bad. With the Latin poet we may exclaim :—"Tros Tyriusque mihi nullo discrimine agetur."

However, when we see writers avail of figures to mislead the public, to throw dust into the eyes of the country, we feel it our bounden duty to upset their conclusions and show the true state of affairs in all their nakedness. When writers take as a basis of their fanciful calculations and comparisons a fluctuating currency and palm off on the public a picture of progress and prosperity, we are inclined to think that they are convinced of the excellence of their arguments and we feel sure the public believe them, because both fail to see or do not care to see that a fluctuating currency offers no reliable basis for comparison. What is the use of talking of millions when those millions are not real? What is the use of talking of progress when that progress is a criminal sham.

As well calculate the value of a country's trade in tramway tickets or I.O.U.'s of the Cordoba Bank, as make estimates of the imports and exports of the country in paper dollars which until recently were not worth more than 33 cents gold in the dollar. Paper money, unless convertible at par, is no basis of calculation or of comparison. All such figures are misleading and lead astray many people who either do not know or do not want to know the relation between paper and gold in this country. Here is a sample of this kind of calculation in the figures of imports into and exports from this country for the years 1888 and 1889, viz.:

	$	$
Imports...	128,400,000	164,000,000
Exports...	100,000,000	122,600,000
	228,400,000	286,600,000

This is the free and easy way with which such figures are supplied to the public, leading the readers to suppose that imports have increased 36 millions and exports 22 millions, the total increase of foreign trade being 58 millions. The true state of affairs, however, can only be gleaned after reducing all these paper figures to gold at 45 o/o premium in 1888 and 75 o/o (very much under the mark) in 1889, with the following results:—

Gold figures—	1888	1889
	$	$
Imports...	88,500,000	93,700,000
Exports...	69,000,000	70,000,000
	157,500,000	163,700,000

Here we see that imports show an increase of only five millions and exports of only one million, while the increase in the volume of foreign trade in 1889 does not amount to seven millions. Let us compare the increase in paper and gold figures to show the disparity.

Increase of 1889:—

	In paper.	In gold.
	$	$
Imports	35,600,000	5,200,000
Exports	22,600,000	1,000,000
Total...	58,200,000	6,200,000

This reduction of paper to gold shows the exact state of affairs and we need not exult over the results, for the increase in both imports and exports is insignificant, in fact, points to stagnation in our foreign trade. The many may gloat over the paper increase, but the few will reflect over the gold figures: the foreign public, however, will not be deceived. We may observe that in all the above figures, imports or exports of specie are excluded.

To gauge our advance, retrogression, or our stationary condition, we must go back a few years. Let us go back to 1884, when paper money was at par under the Presidency of General Roca and compare the figures of 1884 with those of 1889, first in paper, and then in gold. Beginning with the paper comparison, we see what too many of our colleagues are pleased to call the extraordinary vitality and progress of the country, viz.,

	$	$
Imports ...	94,000,000	164,000,000
Exports ...	68,000,000	122,600,000
	162,000,000	286,600,000

Verily, could there be a more pleasing, more delusive picture? Imports have increased no less than 70 millions! What better proof of the enormous accumulation of wealth in the republic? Exports have increased 55 millions! Who could doubt the vitality of our production? The volume of trade has increased 124 millions! What other country in the world can show such advance, relatively speaking, in three years? None! But all this is sham, nothing but sham and nonsense, with which we endeavour to turn our own heads and those of the world who do not see the comedy. Let us reduce this comparison to gold and then examine if we have gone ahead or have remained stationary:

	1884	1889
	$	$
Imports ...	94,000,000	93,700,000
Exports ...	68,000,000	70,000,000
	162,000,000	163,700,000

In the light of the above figures, where is all the glamor of our vaunted prosperity in the last three years? Where is the enormous increase of production caused by the wonderful influx of half a million immigrants? All this gloss, all this sham is purely artificial, it is paper; it reduces itself to a falling-off in imports and an increase of two millions in exports! This is the sum total of four years' hard labor. "Risum teneatis, amici?" Verily, the people who govern may exclaim "le jeu ne vaut pas la chandelle."

We are tired of this systematic mystification in which the people are led to believe that commercially speaking we have made enormous strides. We are surfeited with all these sham millions raised under the veil of a steady depreciation in the currency. Let us not deceive ourselves. Let us look resolutely at the situation and declare frankly that we have not advanced a single step since the fatal decree of "curso forzoso" was signed in 1885. No, we have gone back, and no year will more eloquently shew that fatal process of retrogression than the current year. The people are impoverished and consumption must fall off to an enormous extent. All our exports are inflated in paper, and although larger in bulk, through the fall in the level of prices throughout the world will not be much above the average this year. Let us look at the figures of the first quarter of this year; we shall quote them in paper money first—

Trade returns of the first quarter of the following years:—

	Imports	Exports
1888...	32,000,000	30,000,000
1889...	37,500,000	33,000,000
1890...	40,000,000	79,000,000

On the strength of the above figures, it is argued that nothing could be more satisfactory than the enormous figure of exports in the first quarter of the current year and the stationary condition of imports. Before dwelling any longer on the subject, we shall reduce the paper figures to gold at the rate of 40 o/o premium for 1888, 45 o/o for 1889, and 180 o/o for 1890; gold, it must be remembered, has been constantly in the neighbourhood of 200 o/o and more during the first quarter of this year:—

Gold figures of the trade returns for the first quarter of the following years:—

	Imports	Exports
	$	$
1888...	22,800,000	21,400,000
1889...	25,500,000	27,700,000
1890...	14,280,000	28,200,000

If anything, the above figures prove beyond doubt that imports have fallen off enormously, and this falling-off is the most eloquent proof of the impoverishment of the masses. It is poor consolation indeed to see exports little less than stationary and imports falling-off: this is an unerring sign of decline, and, what is worse this is only the beginning of the decline. In all these figures we see the curse of "curso forzoso"; far from increasing production, it reduces it; whilst in the falling off in imports we can trace the misery and impoverishment of the people. "Curso forzoso" is a monstrous tax on their labor; it fleeces them of their earnings and robs them of ½ to ⅔ of their hard earned savings. Under such circumstances no country under the sun can progress, not even the Argentine Republic with all its exceptional conditions. Let us reconcile ourselves to the fact that we are becoming poorer and poorer; the country is in a decline, and the only remedy is a return to specie payments.

Before concluding, we beg to state that the figures we have analysed are to the best of our knowledge in paper and are published as paper figures in official documents and official organs; therefore, all our deductions and reductions to a gold basis must be correct.

LONDON LETTER

POSTSCRIPT

(From our own Correspondent.)

London, March 22nd

I have sent you such a wealth of copy relating to the Berlin crisis that I have left myself nothing to say. To-day's papers are bare of news. In Berlin the Emperor is feting his uncle the Prince of Wales, and Prince Bismarck is busy moving to Friedrichsruhe whilst General Georg von Caprivi di Caprera di Montecucculli is arranging his papers in the official residence vacated by his predecessor. The nine day's wonder is over. Already the world is accustoming itself to think of Europe without the controlling power of Bismarck, but if we ask ourselves the question "what next?" I find that the Duc de Broglie and all the most venerable and experienced statesmen in Europe can give only one answer—"don't know". The writers in the newspapers are equally impotent in their speculations. In the conservative press the prevailing tone is one of rancour and disappointment, and the feeling is general that whatever does come, the only gainers will be the Socialist party. A striking instance of the effect of Prince Bismarck's fall has just occurred in Italy where Signor Crispi's government has been defeated on the question of arresting a socialist deputy. The defeat was attended by demonstrations in the chambers and amongst the public which clearly enough discovered that a weight had been lifted from the European safety valve. The whole subject must be postponed. We are not yet acquainted with the motives — not so much of Prince Bismarck's resignation — as of the desire of the Emperor to get rid of him. The air is laden with false rumours from Berlin. Last night, in writing to you, I purposely avoided touching the question. If I had repeated half of what I saw in print and heard in club rooms you would have thought me as insane as I believe the people in Berlin to be under the temporary political excitement of the hour. Two things only are clear. The Emperor, though he parted on friendly terms with his late Chancellor, made no effort to get him to withdraw his resignation, and the Prince on his part mistrusted the ultimate effect of the Emperor's flirtation with the labor party, and that was his sole reason for resigning. There were minor reasons, but these were chronic so long as the Prince remained in office, whoever he served as his sovereign. They referred to the monopoly even in details of government which he was allowed to assume under the old Emperor and would not resign under the new or under anyone. As Dr. Bernstein says in Time, the Emperor is a conceited young man with good intentions that are spoiled by his mystical idea that he is born to do something stupendous. His old Chancellor fondly believed that if there were anything more in the stupendous way to be done in Germany, he himself must to do it. Hence the breach was inevitable. The Economist of to-day, which has nothing to say about Argentine Finance, seems to be wholly absorbed in German politics and in the fulfilment of its own prophecy that the German Emperor was and has been from the beginning working to become an autocratic sovereign, an idea that has been installed into his mind by the flattery of some of his immediate friends. You will have seen as we have seen that Count Waldersee is in disgrace. This is contradicted, and indeed nearly all the Berlin rumours of the last two days are now contradicted.

The only statesman who seems lively and self-satisfied under the circumstances is Lord Salisbury who, like the Bourbons, never learns and never forgets. In the House of Lords he made a speech last night on the Report of the Special Commission. By a large majority the motion for a vote of thanks to the Judges was passed and without any debate on the main question. Lord Salisbury's speech was certainly clever. It was also mendacious, illogical and insulting and a concentrated essence of all he had ever said in justification of his treatment of the Irish party and people, for whom he does not conceal his hatred and contempt. He appealed to the law lords in the House and asked them as lawyers if anything could be more absurd than the supposition that if a criminal is condemned on a majority of counts in an indictment, he is to be apologised to for the counts upon which he is found to be not guilty! He repeated his determination to save Protestants and Loyalists in Ireland from the persecution—he did not quite say so but he meant it—of the "criminals" convicted by the judges. In short the Marquis of Salisbury, if the arrangement of affairs were left to him, closed the door against all remedies but civil war. Fortunately, throughout his speech there was a tacit admission that in time the government of Ireland would have to be handed over to the Irish—criminals as he thought them.

In financial matters I have nothing to say except to draw your attention to a carefully thought out article on Argentine finance in the South American Journal.

The poll at the Rio Grande Southern Railway meeting was 2 to 1 in favour of Mr. Austin and the revolt against the directors.

PARIS LETTER

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, 29 March.

The Labor Conference, as was anticipated, has taught nothing new to the one or two nations, who have been, since years, in the field of humane legislation for women and children, whether these be employed in mines, factories or workshops. In this respect England still can teach nations how to live. No one denies that the toiler ought to have one day's rest in the Seven, and the majority of mankind would plebescite in favor of Sunday. Protestant Germany works just as much as Catholic France, on Sundays, as on week days. In neither case does the religious side of the question weigh for much; laborers, workers, say: "we work on the seventh day to earn wages, as we do the other six, give us seven days' wages for six days' work, and we will be only too glad to jump at the holiday". However, the influence of less task master customs, and kindlier manners, are operating in favor of a weekly repose day. The matter is not very difficult for salaried employes, but in the case of workers by the day or by the piece the case is different.

It was something, after all, to bring backward nations into line with what has been done elsewhere, for European fellaheen. As the Congress had no power to bind or unbind, its resolutions or recommendations must remain in the realm of the Academical. It was no small tribute to suffering humanity, that an emperor summoned the best social doctors to diagnose labor—miseries, though no practical person expected the prescription of any perfect cure. The limitation of the out-puts of industry, being the annexe in a sense of the hours devoted to work, was avoided by the Congress. No hard and fast law can be edicted for this subject. It would be useless, unless it were universal, and it cannot be the latter, because the conditions of production turn, as truly do.

"Mariners with fortune humors with climes.
Tenets with books, and principles with times."

France could not claim the first rank in reformatory labor legislation, as she has much leeway to make up to be abreast of England. But she has scored successes by accepting the invitation of her conqueror to a mercy seat, and in being the recipient of marked but not patronizing courtesy at the hands of the victor. Senator Jules Simon was entrusted with the execution of the Doxology of the Conference—that he led well, adding thereto his benediction. He is the secular Cardinal of France.

It was impossible for the Socialists to call upon their thousands to appear and to mass themselves on next May morning unless providing them with a cry. The Shibboleth is the limitation of labor—for adults—to eight hours a day. Public opinion is not with that advanced idea, which is far from being rife. However, it is no secret that the real object of the coming Cosmopolitan rest day is to bring about the federation of all the employees of industry in a nation, and this effected, to federate these federations in a universal solidarity. It is the co-operative principle applied by working men, to command a remedy for their long-ignored grievances. Could such unanimity be secured, the dictates of Labor should be obeyed. Before such an extreme be reached the capitalists will be gradually brought round to reconsider their peculiarism, for we are in presence of a new phenomenon in the working world and that cannot be postponed or over-looked.

The Argentine Republic is interested in sheep farming. The "abattoir," or slaughterhouse men of Paris—some five thousand in number—are out on strike, and the butchers have made common cause with them. Occurring at the close of Lent, when people were counting on a "pièce de resistance" for Easter Sunday, it is too bad. The strikers accuse the protectionist deputies of being the cause of all their woe. The principal source of the supply of sheep for Paris consumption is, not Algeria nor France, but Germany. Till lately, the latter exported twenty-five thousand sheep weekly into France; Austria contributed a little to the total. It is estimated that a sheep by its skin, wool and offal, represented a sum of five francs per head, and it was from these sources the slaughter men were paid. On the pretext that German sheep, etc., were diseased—but really to favor protectionists—their entry was prohibited, The Germans erected slaughterhouses on the frontier, submitted the carcases to inspection, and then dispatched the mutton in frigorific vans to Paris. That is how the biter has to bite the file. The killing the animals on the frontier is a net gain to Germany. The strikers call upon the Chamber to rescind the prohibitory order. If the carcase of an animal be pronounced sound for exportation, the animal cannot be unfit for exportation when in the live state.

Prince Bismarck already has nearly become ancient history. Opinion is recovering from the consternation his retirement at first produced. What difference his departure a few years earlier from the stage, from incompatibility of humor with his master, than his inevitable disappearance by the Angel of Death, whose wings his seventy-five years ought to hear occasionally beating. It is still guess-work to explain the cause of the ex-Chancellor's query, forced or voluntary, resignation. On this point there are as many versions afloat as would make a three-volume romance. The conclusion drawn is, that the Prince would not play second fiddle to the Emperor, nor the Emperor to the Prince. The latter did not expect that his services could be dispensed with, and this accounts for all the Bismarcks retiring in dudgeon from diplomatic and ministerial life.

The series of incidents have rather contributed to impress the public with a higher idea of the character of the young Emperor. He has out-lived the suspicions generally entertained of him, that he was determined to rush into war, and flesh his maiden sword in glory. He will not provoke war, nor will he cease being "aye ready" for it. The triple alliance is not viewed as impaired by the radical changes at Berlin. Greater efforts will be made to attract England to that league of peace by not crossing her foreign policy, the permanent protectorate of Egypt and a godspeed to her counteracting Russian extension in Europe.

Beyond the chronic amount of mutual bickerings, there is nothing changed in the home situation. M. de Freycinet will prove to be as prudent as M. Tirard. After the Easter recess and the General Councils, which will occupy April, the Chamber, when it reassembles, will deal with the finances of the country, and that promise to be at least seriously examined, and a faithful account revealed. It is best to judge the tree by its fruit. In the mean time, M. Carnot will make a tour through Southern France and Corsica, and hold a naval review. His visit to Algeria is fixed for 1891.

Opinion seems agreed, that it is full time to put an end to the Opera-Comique imprisonment of the Duke d'Orleans The Republic has been positively angelic towards the young duke, and toleration itself towards his partizans, who cannot make political capital out of the Conscript Adventure. Othello's occupation is gone; let down the curtain; turn off the gas, and request the nursery prisoner to start for the frontier, not forgetting to present him say, with a copy of Silvio Pellico's imprisonment, and the incarceration of the Duchess de Berry in the fortress of Blaye, by her great grand-father, Louis Philippe.

Very uncomplimentary rumors are in circulation respecting the non-publication of the report by the Commissioners sent out by the Liquidator of the Panama Canal Company to examine the works, etc. The thorny point is, that the Commissioners, having been given a free hand, claim the right of examining the statements of preceding Commissioners and pointing out the 'suppressio veri' and the 'suggestio falsi'. This would be tantamount to an indictment against the Directory, which the victimized shareholders would not be slow to follow up.

The consensus opinion respecting the collapsed enterprise is this: if you have put money into it, regard the cash as totally lost; if you intend investing in its resurrection, view the money as thrown away in advance.

I have already drawn attention to the grievances of those French artists who sent their pictures to the Exhibition held in your city in 1888. The matter was brought before the Chamber of Deputies; the Government declined to be in any way responsible for the organization of an enterprize by M. Delapsch and others; it would, however, do all in its power to aid the artists to recover their pictures. This is now considered to be much consolation, as the artists interested have subscribed a fund to prosecute M. Delepech and others, to recover their property, or to pay its value.

Ex-Minister Lockroy, deputy for Paris, says: the tap room is the people's salon, since everyone cannot expect to figure in the drawing rooms of duchesses, whether they be "grande" or "petite."

AN IMPORTANT INVENTION.

A NEW PROCESS OF SALT MANUFACTURE WHICH IS EXPECTED TO REVOLUTIONIZE THE TRADE.

The following is from the Times:

"Few persons, except those conversant with the salt industry, would suppose that the manufacture of that important commodity is carried on at the present time in precisely the same way as when salt was first made—namely, by evaporating brine in open pans. These pans are now, and for centuries past have been, made of wrought iron, and are of quadrangular form, and range in area from 600 to 1,000 square feet, and in depth from 12 inches to 16 inches. Beneath these pans are three or four furnaces, according to the size of the pan, and as the salt is deposited on the bottom of the pans it is fished out of the brine and removed for moulding and drying. But there is always a greater or less deposit of salt left on the bottom plates of the pans, particularly over the furnaces, and this deposit, combining with the salts of lime and magnesia in the brine, forms a hard scale upon the plates, which causes them rapidly so burn away and to buckle, or bend. Salt pans are, therefore, constantly under repair, and the finer the salt made the heavier are the repairs, the life of a salt pan averaging about three years. The brine, moreover, leaks from the pans into the furnaces, and results in the production of gases which are alike deleterious to animal and vegetable life. It is true that attempts at improvement have often been made, as, for instance, evaporating the brine in revolving cylinders over a fire, but success has not attended the trials of these methods, so that in general the production of salt is effected after the primitive fashion of our remote ancestors—namely, by open evaporation. This process, moreover, is a very slow one, and the output is comparatively small in proportion to the area occupied and the quantity of fuel used. A salt works running some seven or eight pans will give an average output of 80 tons per week of salt made from brine containing 1 lb. 14 oz. per gallon. In every respect, therefore, an improved process has long been greatly desired.

"The attempts which have been made to modify the ordinary pans and furnaces have resulted in such a small increment of success, as regards improved methods of working, that it has long been evident that improvement could only be the outcome of a radical and thorough change. This change has now been effected by Dr. Sigismund Pick, of Szczakowa, Austria, who has for many years past devoted his attention to the subject in connection with chemical manufactures. Dr. Pick's process is simple, automatic and continuous, and, whilst requiring only about two-fifths of the fuel at present necessary for the manufacture of salt, can be worked with a minimum of unskilled labour. Moreover, the apparatus being worked under vacuum and heated by steam instead of fire, the wear and tear is practically nil, whilst the products are of the highest quality and the output exceptionally rapid and large. The secret of success lies in being able to materially quicken the process of production without risk of damage to the products and without increasing the absolute heat, but rather by reducing it, and at the same time reducing the expenses both of working and maintenance. The invention depends for its success upon two circumstances mainly. The first is that the boiling point of any liquid is lowered by reducing the pressure under which evaporation is carried out, and the second, that the steam generated by the evaporation of any liquid contains a certain amount of latent heat, which is sufficient to evaporate another quantity of liquid, provided that the boiling point of the latter is below the temperature of the steam used. Dr. Pick's apparatus is made in three separate but duplicate sections, each section consisting of four main and closely connected parts. These are the heating chamber, the boiling chamber, the collecting chamber, and the filtering chamber.

"The three sections are placed side by side, a few feet apart, and they are connected together by pipes. The first section is in communication with a steam boiler, or with the exhaust steam from an engine, while the third section is connected with an air-pump and condenser. Each of the three sections having been charged with brine, steam is admitted to the heating chamber of the first section, heating the brine in it. The steam given off from that brine enters the steam chamber of the second section and heats the brine in that section, the steam from which goes to the heating chamber of the third section and heats the brine therein. A vacuum being maintained in the three sections by a pump, boiling or evaporation is carried on at the reduced temperature due to that vacuum. The salt, as it is precipitated, settles in the collecting chamber, and thence is admitted at intervals into the filtering chamber. Here the brine, which is carried forward with the salt, is automatically returned to the boiling chamber, and the crystallised salt is withdrawn, moulded and dried for the market. The brine from the tanks is supplied automatically to the boiling chamber of each section and the processes of evaporation and production are simultaneous and continuous.

"The successful working of the system does not depend upon the adoption of the three sections, for salt has been, and is being, made equally well in one, although by no means so economically as when the complete set of three is used. In order, however, to demonstrate the practical value of Dr. Pick's invention in this country, a single section, with its boiler, air pump, and condenser, has lately been erected at a salt works in Staffordshire, under the superintendence of Mr Perry F. Nursey, C.E. This plant, the working of which had been previously proved by Dr. Pick in Austria, has now been running for some little time past with thorough practical success as a salt producer. It is only a small plant capable of turning out about one ton per day of 24 hours from fully saturated brine—i. e., brine containing 2lb. 6oz. of salt per gallon. This output it has been yielding regularly ever since it was fairly started to work. The charge of salt is drawn every hour without stopping the action of the apparatus, and the salt thus produced is of the finest quality. With a complete plant of three sections of larger size the output would be 50 tons of salt per day of 24 hours at a calculated cost of 2s. 6d. per ton for labour and all other expenses. By the ordinary system of open pans the cost of production ranges from 9s. per ton under the most favoured circumstances to 12s. per ton where less favourable conditions obtain.

"The advantages of the new system appear to be obvious. In the first place there is a great saving in fuel, especially where exhaust steam is available. The present consumption of coal in the ordinary pan process is stated to be 12 cwt per ton of fine white salt. Even where exhaust steam is not available for the new process, the consumption of coal is less than 4 cwt per ton of salt. Another important advantage is the absence of frequent repairs, and the small amount of wear and tear. These items alone, in the ordinary method of salt manufacture, add seriously to the cost of production, not only in themselves, but by reason of the loss occasioned by long stoppages. Then there is the saving in labour. In Dr. Pick's system six men and two boys, formed into two 12-hour shifts of three men and a boy per shift, are sufficient for working a plant having an output of 50 tons per day of 24 hours. Other advantages are the absence of smoke and deleterious vapours, and the great economy in space occupied. A 50-ton per day plant only occupies an area equal to that covered by a salt pan producing 40 tons per week.

"From the experience gained with the present plant, Dr. Pick appears to have succeeded in supplying to the salt trade a factor which, by materially reducing the cost of manufacture, must benefit not only the maker and the consumer, but must regain for England what looks very much like a departing industry. In illustration of this, it may be mentioned that whereas in 1888 there were 898,671 tons of salt shipped from this country, the shipments during 1889 fell to 666,796 tons—a decrease in one year of 231,875 tons, or, in other words, a loss of more than one-fourth of the export trade in salt. When it is remembered, too, that the export of chemicals from this country, in the manufacture of which salt constitutes one of the principal items, stands at present at £2,000,000 per annum, it becomes apparent that but for the introduction of Dr. Pick's process, or of some other equally efficient system, it may be expected that the decrease in the export of salt shown last year will be repeated, if not exceeded. It would appear as though, after years of research, Dr. Pick had brought his investigations to a practical issue at a very important juncture in the history of salt manufacture."

Railway Items.

The East Argentine Railway guarantee account for 1889 is now awaiting the approval of the N. R. Board. This is the sixteenth since the railway was opened to traffic. The amount is $342,087 gold minus the net earnings during the year which sum up $29,079. Government has therefore to pay a balance of over $300,000 gold.

Dr. Araoz has again written to the Minister on the necessity of having barriers placed at all level crossings.

Amongst other little bills which Government has to pay is one for £44,064. This is the service on the Central Northern Extensions Loan.

The Santa Fe Central Northern Railway Company have filed an application for the reimbursement of the money deposited by them as guarantee of good faith.

Following up the complaint reported by us in our last, Dr. Arnoz yesterday wired to the managers of the Central Northern and Central Railways, requesting them to immediately forward the machinery sent up for the Tucuman sugar factories. A telegram was received in the evening from the manager of the Central Argentine Railway stating that the requisite instructions had been given. The activity with which the complaint was taken up and redress obtained shews how swiftly the N. R. Board can act.

The branch line running into the Central Produce Market was inaugurated yesterday. This is a decided advantage both for the market and producers.

According to the new time-table, in force from to-day, of the Western Railway, the Trenquelauquen train will leave the Once Station at 7 a. m., arriving in Trenquelauquen at 9.25 p. m. The Junin and San Nicolas train will start from the Once at 7.45 a. m. arriving in Junin at 4.50 p.m. and San Nicolas at 4.35 p. m. The Saladillo train leaves the Once at 7. am. arriving in Saladillo at 12.15 and the Lobos train starting at 4.30 p.m. arrives at 7.40 a.m. The Brandzen train starts at 7 a. m. from La Plata.

The Inspector General, to allay the anxiety of Mr. Ashall P. Bell, who has again written to the Government urging an extension of time for the signing of the contract for the Metropolitan Railway, has again approved the application. The ultimate sanction of the Government will not therefore be delayed much longer.

Mr. J. R. Silveyra has also applied to Government for extension of time to sign the contract for the construction of the railway from Cachari to Cordoba.

The Central Argentine Railway Board propose alterations in the branch line to Pergamino.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The colossal strike to-day in Europe makes many people anxious lest something bloody may ensue. Here the working men have also resolved to make holiday and held a meeting at the Recoleta. No disturbance need be feared on this side of the Atlantic, and we doubt very much if there will be any on the other. Labour simply means to show its present master and future partner, Capital, that it is no longer to be trifled with.

Really, the River Plate Republics (excepting Banda Oriental) seem to be going back to bad habits. The sensation of yesterday was the news of a revolutionary scuffle in Asuncion, with the usual allowance of "muertos y heridos." No particulars—except a rush of Paraguayan exiles from Corrientes to the frontier—had come to hand up to a late hour.

There will be a Children's Service in the Scotch church, on Sunday forenoon and there will be no Sunday school.

We were safe in offering odds that Congress would not meet to day. Either Saturday or Monday will be the day.

The wreck of the German steamer Corrientes, on the Piedras Blancas, a few miles from Montevideo, was announced yesterday. She was just getting up full steam for Europe, with a large cargo of produce.

We note that Dr. Luis A. Peyret is to be the new commercial judge, vice Dr. Beracochea, who goes to Congress. It is an excellent appointment.

This will be a great day at La Plata. Crowds are going from this city to see Governor Costa sworn in; and the Southern and Ensenada railways have made extra preparations for the fray.

The news from Montevideo yesterday was that the Chambers had voted a new loan and wiped out the ominous word "Cedulas" from the Uruguayan dictionary. It is expected that European monetary fish will have no objection to rise to a "Hypothecary Bond," when they would show their tails to a Hypothecary Cedula: the bait of the latter kind from this country having disagreed with them so terribly. The Britannia has arrived from Liverpool, and her mails will be here to-day.

Lieutenant Howard has been named Inspector of the fleet. The Minister of War has recalled Lieutenant Ramirez, who is at present in Europe on Government business to fill an important post in his department.

Neither the President nor Minister of Finance put in an appearance in the Government House to-day. Both indisposed.

General Racedo arrived to-day from Entre Rios. A friend of his, who accompanied him, told us that the number of killed on both sides was twenty-two. The General leaves again in a few days to forward his candidateship as Governor for that Province.

The largest private dwelling house in England is Wentworth House, the Yorkshire seat of Earl Fitzwilliam, situate about nine miles from Sheffield. For extent and magnificence it is not excelled by any private dwelling in Europe.

The Paris papers refer in most eulogistic terms to a magnificent ball given by our old friend Mr. Thomas Armstrong at his palatial residence in the French capital. The list of guests appears to contain the cream of the Faubourg St. Germain and Parisian society generally.

The Banda Oriental farmers are beginning to ask for Protection, as maize from this country is threatening to swamp the price of their own. If both countries would only stick to what nature meant them to grow—meat of all kinds—and abandon all growing of grain for export, as India will beat the whole world in grain production very shortly, it would be much better for them.

Directions for cooking a goose, as given by the bird itself:—

There will be a little mild illumination in the Plaza de la Legislatura in La Plata to-night, in honor of Governor Costa's accession to power. No other demonstration of jubilee will take place. Times are too hard.

Times are changing. The old office of the Nacional in Calle Belivar was sold less than a year ago for 340,000 dollars; and the buyer considered himself lucky in getting 206,000 dollars for it a few days ago.

Our distinguished colleague, Mr. Gomara has had such a great success with his play, "De Paseo en Buenos Aires," that he is hard at work on another that will certainly "fetch" both the Dons and their Argentine cousins, to say nothing of the French. The piece will be called "The Defence of Buenos Aires in 1807." Belgrano will figure in it; and the fight at Santa Domingo convent will be one of the scenes. It does not require much prophetic vision to gauge the "entusiasmo frenetico" that this new spectacular play will create.

In Rioja they have now a harmless lunatic who imagines himself to be Don Quijote. He went "off his head" through reading Cervantes's great work, and it is never out of his hands. He lives in the mountains, has an old mule for Rosinante, winds his "poncho" round his arm for a shield, and has a tremendously long cane for a lance. He charges full tilt into flocks of goats and sheep, and one day was caught and received an unmerciful drubbing from an owner of animals he had treated in this way. The only thing wanting to complete the picture is another "loco" to play Sancho Panza.

Admiral Hotham and all the officers of H. M. ships at Montevideo paid President Herrera an official visit on Monday at the Government House and were most cordially received by him.

The population of Mexico won't increase much, if there be any truth in the following paragraph:—"In this country a quack cannot find many patients if he contented himself merely asserting that on the average he cured more than he killed. To be successful his nostrum must be an infall

People with ready paper money made 4 points on National Bank shares and 2½ on gold for one month.

Some brokers held large orders to buy National Bank shares, but the gold could not be sold and the shares not bought.

San Juan advices announce that this year's vintage will be splendid, and that raisins and wine are being dispatched for Buenos Aires as fast as waggons can be supplied by the railway.

Messrs. Mackill, Murray and Co., on behalf of their friends, Laidlaw and Co., Glasgow, have presented to the Rural Society, a beautiful cup to be competed for at the show next week, for the best long-wooled ram of any age. The cup is of special design and of exquisite workmanship and bears on the one side the Argentine arms and on the other the Scotch arms. It is hoped that this cup will draw forth a spirited competition and in some measure tend to make the long-wooled sheep still more popular in the Argentine Republic. L. and Co. are the well-known tobacco dip manufacturers.

The sale by auction yesterday of the property in Calle Bolivar, occupied for so many years by our esteemed colleague, El Nacional, shows a severe fall in the value of city properties, as the seller, who paid 340,000 dollars a bare year ago, could only get 206,000 dollars now, thus showing a clear loss of 134,000 dollars on the business. The buyer is Mr. J. Lanus.

The news of the day in shipping circles was the foundering of the German packet Corrientes on the Piedras Blancas reef, off Montevideo. She had loaded up river 2,500 tons of wool and cereals for Hamburg and had just left Montevideo, when by some mistake in laying the route she ran on the reef and began to make water immediately. Assistance was immediately despatched from Montevideo and the passengers and part of the cargo taken off. The agents, Messrs. Luders and Co., hope to have her soon afloat again. The S.S. Tijuca, of the same line, takes the passengers on to Hamburg.

The love of protection seems to be deeply seated in Montevideo, and we note by an exchange this morning that no less than eleven iron firms are up in arms against the idea of allowing iron rafters in free of duty for the Central Produce Market there. This shows that the industry has reached a high stage of development across the river, and the petitioners prove, that with the exception of the requisite machinery for the market, all the iron work can be made in Montevideo. As proof of the assertion, they point to the iron work supplied by them to the Gounouilhon Bathing Establishment, the National Hotel, the English Bank, the Artes y Oficios School, and to several other buildings which adorn the Queen City. The case appears to be protection versus protection, and the Government has to choose between the Central Produce Market and the foundries of Montevideo. Our contemporary the Telegrafo Maritimo shows in a calm and dignified tone, that the foundries are in the right, and urges the Chambers to grant their petition. We cannot recall a similar case here, and this, perhaps, may be due to inferior enterprise.
